CBM Global Policy: Health, Safety and Security

February 2021
Rationale

The key to effective Health, Safety & Security (HS&S) risk management is the creation of a culture of health, safety and security. CBM Global works to create such an environment.

While CBM Global recognises that no working environment can be made risk free, much can be done to mitigate risk and possible threats when all parties recognise their roles and responsibilities within an organisation’s health, safety and security framework. In addition to adherence to organisational policies and procedures, individuals must be committed to promoting a healthy workplace culture and sensitive to their environments and willing to adapt to changing threats. For this reason, health, safety and security is necessarily a cooperative effort between the organisation and all its employees.

Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to create a culture of well-being, safety and security, to enable project continuity, and ultimately to uphold the well-being, health and safety of staff.

Health can be defined as a state of physical, mental and social wellbeing (not just the absence of illness). Safety can be described as the freedom from risk or harm resulting from unintentional or accidental acts, events or hazards. Security can be described as freedom from risk or harm resulting from intentional acts of violence, aggression and/or criminal acts against staff, assets or property.

This policy is designed for the welfare of staff and for the protection of all. In CBM Global, we place the health, safety and security of staff first. Therefore, employees that do not comply with the policy and so put their own or other’s health and safety at risk will face disciplinary action that could result in dismissal. This is enforced for all staff, irrespective of their position in the organisation.

Scope

CBM Global’s Health, Safety & Security policy is applicable to all staff of CBM Global and all its related offices. It also governs the health, safety and security principles that apply to travelling Member Association staff, CBM Global Board members and third parties (e.g. personal assistants, donors, celebrities, free-lancers, volunteers, consultants and media teams) to CBM Global Country Offices or programme countries on CBM Global related business. Member Associations are invited to adopt the policy if they do not have in place a policy of a similar standard, and are requested to ensure that existing policies align with this policy.

The policy is to be implemented in conjunction with CBM Global’s policies on Safeguarding, Accessibility, Feedback & Complaints, Whistleblowing and other relevant policies.
Statement and Principles

Statement

CBM Global has both a legal and a moral obligation to take all possible and reasonable measures to reduce the risk of harm to those working for CBM Global and to uphold and promote the physical and mental wellbeing of staff.

CBM Global’s primary strategy to mitigate the risk of harm is that of acceptance by the individuals, communities and authorities with whom we work. By its nature, there may be environments in which we carry out our work that may pose certain risks, and the impact of CBM Global’s activities that can be achieved should always outweigh the risks taken. CBM Global will not undertake any missions, field visits or project activities that jeopardize the safety and security of staff, partner organisations including Organisations of Persons with Disabilities, the project participants or the local community. In consequence, CBM Global will suspend its operations where the security risks are disproportionate to the potential programme benefits. Therefore, CBM Global commits itself to continuously analyse and understand the context and the risks that result from working in that context and to promote mental wellbeing.

Principles

1. Primacy of Life

For CBM Global, life is of greater value than material and therefore no staff should endanger their own life, or the lives of others, whilst attempting to protect CBM Global property, equipment, financial resources, documents or infrastructure. This also means that CBM Global will consider primacy of life the priority when dealing with any crisis.

2. Right to withdraw and right to decline

CBM Global upholds the right to withdraw an employee or a group of employees from an area or country at all times. Non-compliance is a disciplinary issue. Likewise, a CBM Global staff member has the right to decline travel (eg. a project trip) or deployment if he or she deems an unacceptable level of risk involved to their personal health, safety, and security.

3. Principle of non-partiality and neutrality

CBM Global adopts the principles of non-partiality and neutrality. These principles are the foundation of a strategy based upon acceptance by the host community. This is the security strategy that CBM Global considers most appropriate.

4. Mental health and psychosocial support

Mental health is core to overall wellbeing and quality of life, and staff health, safety and security includes protecting mental health. CBM Global will seek to promote a culture that encourages wellbeing and a work-life balance, and maintain services that offer emotional support to staff who request additional assistance to manage their current situation.
5. Acceptance as the primary security strategy

A security strategy based on acceptance means building a safe operating environment through consent, approval and cooperation from project participants, persons with disabilities, communities and local authorities.

6. Protection measures as a secondary strategy

A secondary component of the security strategy is protection by reducing the vulnerability of CBM Global staff to a possible threat, for example, by building walls or hiring guards. Improving practice through standard operating procedures (SOPs) is also a protective measure.

7. Deterrence as last resort

Under certain circumstances, generally as a last resort, deterrence measures can be adopted in order to further reduce the risk by containing the threat with a counter threat, for example: armed protection, diplomatic/political leverage or temporary suspension. CBM Global avoids deterrence measures as much as possible; they are often counter-productive and may increase risk. CBM Global will avoid the use of armed protection. In exceptional situations, where recognised, armed protection may be non-negotiable for operational access. This requires escalating to Executive Management for a decision.

8. Do no harm

In keeping with the acceptance approach, CBM Global upholds the ‘Do No Harm’ principle. This means being inclusive, to respect and promote human rights within its organisational structure and to ensure that the programming is not doing any harm, be it directly or indirectly, intentionally or unintentionally.

9. Minimum standards

In programme countries where the legal minimum standards of occupational health and safety regulations are lower than the standards upheld by CBM Global, the higher health and safety standards should be applied to those working for, or on behalf of, CBM Global.

10. Staff training and learning

As part of CBM Global’s duty of care, HS&S briefing and training will be provided to staff and mechanisms put in place for reflection and learning, in order to support continuous awareness raising and improvement of HS&S practices.

11. Networking

CBM Global will participate in relevant national and international security fora and networks to facilitate the sharing of information and learning and further strengthen CBM Global’s security management plans.

12. Security management by partners

CBM Global partners are encouraged and will be supported to develop their own security risk management plans, as well as to participate in the security trainings that are implemented through CBM Global. CBM Global staff who are travelling with or staying at partner organisations follow the security plan of the partner. In case the directives outlined in the security management system of CBM Global are more stringent, CBM Global staff must follow CBM Global’s security plan. Whenever there is any doubt the line manager should be contacted for advice.

13. Delegated security decision making

Decisions regarding the health, safety and security of staff should be made in close proximity to where the staff are working, delegated through the management line to the Country Director. The Country Director has the authority to raise the security level for his or her country and make on the spot decisions where necessary eg. withdrawing staff from a volatile region, revising travel plans etc.

14. No Ransoms Principle

CBM Global will do everything ethically possible to secure the release of detained or kidnapped staff. However, CBM Global will not pay ransom for the release of staff.

15. Diverse profiles and security risk

While CBM Global strives for equality and non-discrimination in its security approach, CBM Global recognises that individuals may face different risks or be more vulnerable to certain threats because of their nationality, ethnicity, religion, gender identity, sexual orientation, or disability. Under certain circumstances, the prevailing security context or specific risks to an individual, because of their profile, may require CBM Global to take additional security measures. For this reason, individuals shall be informed of specific risks they may face and be advised how to minimise risks.

Monitoring and Compliance

1. CBM Global Board

The CBM Global Board approves the Health, Safety & Security Policy, monitors risk and holds Executive Management responsible for compliance with the policy.

2. Executive Management

The Executive Management of CBM Global is ultimately responsible for health, safety and security risk management for CBM Global staff. It is accountable to the CBM Global Board in defining the level of the acceptable risk threshold, ensuring resourcing of security risk management, informing and advising the CBM Global Board on security matters. Executive Management is responsible to ensure the policy is periodically reviewed and revised as needed.

3. Country Director

Each Country Office must have a Security Focal Point and a Security Management Team in place. The Country Director by default serves as the Security Focal Point unless this function is delegated to another senior staff member. Where the operating environment requires it, additional staff capacity within the Country Office team or consultancy support should be secured. The Country Director is responsible for security risk management at country level:

- Appointing a Security Focal Point or assuming this responsibility as Country Director;
- Ensuring a security risk assessment is completed and regularly reviewed;
• Establishing and maintaining an appropriate country security plan and arrangements for country-based staff and visitors. Responsibility for visitors to the country, including consultants and other third parties, rests with the Country Director.
• Implementing contextualised minimum operating security standards (MOSS).

The advice of the CBM Global Executive Management should be sought, if necessary where the security risk assessment indicates a need for mitigation measures outside the normal scope of responsibilities or experience of the Security Focal Points.

4. Individual staff

Any visitor to a CBM Global Country Office is required to understand, accept and adhere to the country security plan, rules and regulations.

Each staff member bears a significant responsibility for their own health, safety and security and needs to be aware that their personal and professional conduct can have an impact on others’ health, safety and security as well.

Where CBM Global does not have a permanent presence in a country, the individual responsible for activities in that country (often held at Member Association level) must take measures to ensure that staff and others visiting the country adhere to this policy, are briefed in advance and safeguarded throughout their journey.
